01 ORTHOPEDIC

SIGNAL 80

For degenerative cervical spine disease, consider acupuncture and exercise over manual therapy.

Why this matters: A systematic review and meta-analysis of randomized controlled trials investigated various conservative interventions for pain and disability in degenerative cervical spine disease.

BMC Musculoskeletal Disorders

ALSO TODAY

01	ORTHO	British Journal of Sports Medicine
01	ORTHO	British Journal of Sports Medicine
02	NEURO	NeuroRehabilitation
02	NEURO	Topics in stroke rehabilitation

A digital tool combining exercise and CBT may reduce chronic patellofemoral pain.

Why this matters: A multicenter randomized controlled trial examined a smartphone-based intervention for chronic patellofemoral pain.

SIGNAL 80

British Journal of Sports Medicine

Graft type does not affect revision ACL reconstruction risk in football players.

Why this matters: A nationwide cohort analysis investigated if different graft types were associated with revision ACL reconstruction in football players.

SIGNAL 75
British Journal of Sports Medicine

TA VNS with exercise may improve upper limb function in chronic ischemic stroke patients.

Why this matters: A randomized controlled trial evaluated transcutaneous auricular vagal nerve stimulation combined with upper limb exercises in chronic ischemic stroke.

Low pre-stroke physical activity may predict persistent inactivity after minor stroke.

Why this matters: A secondary analysis explored the link between pre-stroke physical activity and activity levels one year after minor stroke.

Five papers a day, read so you don't have to.

Cadence Evidence incadencept.com